Comment #	Publication (Base, 63A, 63B, 63C)	Section	Page #	Line #	Comment (Include rationale for comment)	Suggested Change
1	63B	3.1.1	12	679	Times have changed. Today, people have to manage too many passwords for them to create secure ones, even if the requirements in section 3.1.1.2 are met, and remember all of them.	Change "intended" to "that was intended". Also, change the last sentence to "A password was "something you know".
2	63B	3.1.1.2	13	765	Data that users copy is typically stored in system clipboards that all processes, including nefarious ones, can read.	Verifiers SHALL allow the use of password managers and Autofill functionality. Verifiers MAY permit claimants
3	63B	8.2.1	s	2304	Data that users copy is typically stored in system clipboards that all processes, including nefarious ones, can read.	Discourage use of copy and paste functionality and prohibit lack of support for Autofill, which allows safe retrieval of secrets from password managers.
